Dear Golly:-

Now here's a funny letter for you! - I've moved again - as you can see - and this is at least my real address. - I'm permanently assigned to this organization or at least as permanently as one ever is in the Army.

We just got here today and after unloading our plane, - we got a tent and got fixed up for the night. - I thought I'd spend tomorrow getting things settled, but no. - I'm to be put right to work! - Oh me! - And what work!

Tomorrow I'm to go on my first mission - real honest to goodness one, that is. - I just found it out. - I don't know just what to say - thoughts are just bounding around in my ol' cranium like a ping pong ball on a hardwood floor. - The upshot of it all will be - I'll never get on this paper what I would like to.

To start with - tho it's easy to see why not - I might not get back for more than one reason, - but the odds are pretty good for me! - And actually, I expect to see the end of this war and get back to the States. There's just the question if!

My feelings - well, - we won't go into that very deeply, - In a way I have the same queer nervous empty feeling in my stomach as I usually have before doing anything new to me. - Much as I used to have ~~on~~ the morning before time to start school in September of every year.

What we are going for - and the trip itself - means nothing - there's no fear - for our training has after all, all been in this direction - and I suppose I'm too good a soldier to not want to go. - It's funny, - none of the fellows really want to go on these missions - ~~but~~, not down deep but - we are just drilled to the point where actually, it will be nothing more than a routine training flight, - that is - we hope it will be just a routine flight - even without any added side effects - if you know what I mean.

Well, up to this point - I've just managed to say a lot of nothing.
If - no - I mean, when I come back tomorrow I'll add another page to this - or rather substitute a page for this one.

Just remember no matter what - I'm in here pitching - still having the adventure of my life. - all these hardships just go to add to it all - and just remember - I've had a family life behind me that most fellows can't boast of. - so I've really been a very lucky fellow to date.

Sorry to make this short - but I've got to get some sleep - so remember I've got the best family in the world and I love you all every one I write - and thumbs up!! Love Frank
